DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Pavri (PricewaterhouseCoopers reference) alone.

Pavri discloses a method for auditing intellectual property assets that includes identifying and classifying each asset (pages 2, 10, 18), inspecting documentation related to the asset (see pages 8-11), determining the validity of each asset (table page 10, common practice, inherent), identifying and verifying relevant financial data for each asset (pages 9, 11, 12), identifying and verifying a proper valuation formula for each asset (page 21 paragraph 4+), computing and verifying a valuation for each asset using the formula (page 21 p. 4+, page 24), considering revenue and expenses associated with each asset (page 11), preparing a balance sheet showing the valuation of each asset (page 26), and issuing a statement that the asset values are in accordance with generally accept accounting principles (see conclusion page 27, common practice). Pavri does not disclose preparing an income statement showing revenue and expenses, however, this is common practice in the art (see Suh), and it would be obvious to one skilled in the art that the relevant financial data would reported in some kind of statement.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Morgan et al. discloses an automated system for managing activity and accounting information. MacFarlane et al. disclose a system for automatically managing an organization's accounting information. Simpson et al. disclose a system for identifying and organizing intellectual property information.
4. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Christopher R Buchanan whose telephone number is 703-306-5782. The examiner can normally be reached on M-T 9-7.
